

ABSTRACT

An antiglare system in a vehicle includes a device for controlling antiglare means. The device includes at least one image acquisition means. The antiglare means is controlled as 5 a function of a first signal of the image acquisition means.
The light intensity in the passenger compartment of the vehicle is taken into account in controlling the antiglare means.